

William "Billy" Ingram, the Director of Food and Beverage at The New Rawls Restaurant in downtown Enterprise, AL, brings a wealth of diverse experiences to his role. Having lived in New York, Ohio, and Japan, William developed a love for travel and cultural exploration, visiting iconic landmarks such as the Forbidden City in China and the Great Wall. His global adventures instilled in him a passion for hospitality and an appreciation for diverse cuisines.

After studying Resort and Restaurant Management at SUNY Delhi, William embarked on a dynamic career in the food and beverage industry. He gained valuable experience during a prestigious internship at Walt Disney World, specializing in wine sommelier studies and hospitality management. Throughout his career, William worked at various locations, including Jacksons Steakhouse in Pensacola and Wine World in Sandestin Resort, showcasing his expertise in sales, management, and holiday decor design through his venture, "The Butler Did It Holiday Decor."

Prior to joining The New Rawls Restaurant, William served as lead bartender at Flemings and contributed his talents to corporate giants such as Tommy Bahamas and Winn Dixie Liquor Stores, achieving notable success in sales and management. Now, at The New Rawls, William is eager to elevate the dining experience and introduce superior service standards to the Wiregrass community. With a dedication to excellence and customer satisfaction, William is poised to make a significant impact in his role as Food and Beverage Director.
